Despite recent gun crimes, this city's safe: Cops

Interpreting statistics. Homicides in 2012 are down, but instances of shootings have jumped nearly 30 per cent

First the bullets flew through the Eaton Centre food court. Then, two weeks later, on a sun-filled patio in Little Italy. On Sunday, a man was shot while hundreds watched a fireworks display in the city's east end. Just 24 hours before that, a stray bullet grazed a toddler's leg in North York.

In the wake of an expanding list of brazen public shootings — and an overall spike in gun violence — police are cautioning against characterizations of an unsafe city under siege by whizzing bullets. Guns are being used differently these days, they say.

"Is there still work to do? Of course there is. But Toronto has been for some time and remains the safest big city in North America," said police spokesman Mark Pugash on Tuesday.

"I understand that statistics don't necessarily provide comfort, but they do give us the ability to measure over time what's happened. And we know that over many years now crime is down in Toronto," he added.

Last year there were 49 homicides in Toronto, the fourth consecutive year murders had fallen and the lowest overall year since 1986.

This year, sixteen people have died at the end of a gun so far. At this time last year, that number was 14.

One seemingly alarming statistic shows 163 shooting victims to date in 2012. That's up nearly 40 per cent from 119 at the same time last year.

Pugash countered, saying that some people may be interpreting the statistics "too casually."

"The biggest increase in shootings this year are ones where there are no injuries," he said, pointing out that if a gun is fired in the direction of five people and nobody is hit by a bullet those people are still considered victims.

"So we have 90 people this year who are considered victims, but have no injuries," he said, citing a 60 per cent increase in that category.

Safe — or safest?

That Toronto is getting safer is true, said University of Toronto criminologist Scot Wortley, who went a step further, saying Toronto and Montreal are the safest big cities in the Western hemisphere.

- So far in 2012, 64 per cent of homicides are gun-related — one of only two years where gun deaths have made up more than 60 per cent of homicides in nearly two decades.
- Typically, 45 per cent of homicides involve guns.

Special investigations

SIU clears officer who punched Occupy protester

The province's police watchdog declined to press charges against a Toronto police officer who punched an Occupy Toronto protester in the face after it ruled she swung her arms twice at him first.

The Special Investigations Unit said on Tuesday the unidentified officer was attempting to make an arrest during a protest outside the University Ave. courthouse in March.

The protester, 37-year-old Angela Turvey, suffered a minimally displaced fracture of the nasal bone, bruising around her eyes and a cut over one eye that required seven sutures.

Turvey could not be reached for comment Tuesday afternoon.

A spokesperson for the SIU said in a statement that the agency began its investigation immediately after learning of the incident through media reports.

The probe involved interviews with six police officers — including the officer who threw the punch — and 14 civilian witnesses, as well as a study of news footage and personal videos.

The trouble began on March 30, when the officer and his partner attempted to remove Occupy Toronto protesters from a camp beside the courthouse.

Turvey argued with one of the officers about his seizure of a bag belonging to a protester he had arrested.

She also filmed the officers from extremely close range, according to the SIU.

"Ms. Turvey refused to step back, and the subject officer moved toward her in an attempt to arrest her for interfering in an arrest," the SIU said. "Ms. Turvey began to struggle and the video shows her swinging her arms twice at the officers."

Crash leaves one teen dead, 2 friends in critical condition

High school grieves. Classmates, staff to gather in chapel Wednesday

The Canadian flag in front of St. Brother André Catholic High School in Markham was lowered to half staff Tuesday in memory of Sara Nicole Girard, killed in a car accident days after graduating.

Two of her school mates were critically injured in the crash.

"I have spoken to each of the families ... It's just a very, very tough time," said principal Dan Zaroski.

Girard, 17, died Monday evening when the van she was in rolled over on Hwy. 11 near Parry Sound and veered into a ditch.

The Stouffville teen was ejected from the vehicle and pronounced dead at the scene.

She was returning from a cottage weekend with her two girlfriends, Allison Neville, 17, of Markham and Meghan Timewell, 18, also of Stouffville, who were airlifted to Sunnybrook Hospital after the crash.

The Catholic school board for the area is making arrangements to provide grief counseling for students and staff even though classes have already ended for the summer.

"Our hearts and prayers go out to the Girard family and also to the Neville and Timewell families," said May Moore, spokesperson York Catholic School Board.

"It's quite a shock to hear this news. Their whole lives are ahead of them."

Meanwhile, Grade 12 students and recent graduates and staff will gather in the school cafeteria and chapel from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Wednesday to offer prayers for the three teens. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Preliminary investigation

- No other vehicle was involved and a cause has not been determined, police say.
- A preliminary investigation by OPP suggests that Girard and one other occupant were not wearing seatbelts, causing them to be thrown from the car.

Missing GTA man. Body found in Michigan landfill

Kevin Joseph Arendt. POLICE HANDOUT

Michigan police confirmed the body found last week in a Montrose Township landfill is of a missing man from Peel region.

Peel police said in a press release that the body of Mississauga man Kevin Joseph Arendt was found in Michigan but did not say where it was found.

The 38-year-old Arendt was last seen leaving a bar in his navy blue Jeep Wednesday night near Dundas St. W. and Confederation Pkwy. in Mississauga.

Montrose Township Police Sgt. Jaime Cochran said the body was discovered Friday morning by landfill workers about a 100 km northwest of Detroit.

Cochran said the body was likely brought to Brent Run landfill in a garbage truck from Canada.

"I don't see how else it could get there," Cochran said, as up to 50 garbage trucks come to the area between 5 a.m. and 9 a.m. everyday.

In a press release, Peel Police said they are investigating Arendt's disappearance and subsequent death "although no foul play is suspected".

Toronto organizations baffled by federal cuts to youth justice services

Diversion programs. Ontario's minister of children and youth services plans to fight surprise decision

Quoted

"An investment in young people who are at the front end of a 'potential criminal career,' is just so important and so much more cost-effective than the costs associated with people further on down that line." Heather Sproule, executive director, Central Toronto Youth Services

Toronto organizations which successfully divert young offenders from the court system are baffled as to why the federal government is slashing crucial funds for that purpose.

Last week, when Justice Minister Rob Nicholson announced "continued support" for the federal Youth Justice Services Funding Program at $141.7 million annually, he did not mention that number represents a 20 per cent cut from previous years.

Advocates and experts are struggling to understand the rationale behind the cuts. "An investment in young people who are at the front end of a 'potential criminal career,' is just so important and so much more cost-effective than the costs associated with people further on down that line," said Heather Sproule, executive director at Central Toronto Youth Services. "This does seem to have come out of the blue.

The community-based organization offers programs to as many as 200 youth on probation or diverted from the court system for alternative programs. The agency receives $1.3 million for youth justice services through the province, which allocates the federal transfer funds.

Eric Hoskins, Ontario's minister of children and youth services, said the cuts were a surprise as there was no consultation with the provinces. He said he plans to fight the decision and would seek a meeting with Nicholson.

Nicholson's spokeswoman, Julie Di Mambro, would not specify reasons for the funding cut, calling the amount allocated a "significant investment."

Long-weekend litterbugs leave trail of trash on Toronto beaches

It was the morning after a long weekend of Pride and Canada Day celebrations, and Toronto beaches had mutated into places only Oscar the Grouch could love — sandy goldmines of trash.

Strolling down the Sunnyside boardwalk early Tuesday, trash was everywhere you looked or stepped, evidence of thousands of litterbugs who had a great time by the shore the night before but decidedly left their garbage behind.

Big cleanup

- Usually, the beaches from just west of Sunnyside Beach to Woodbine Beach would be cleaned by 10 a.m., but on Tuesday, workers were still picking up trash at 2 p.m.

In addition to the usual beer bottles and pizza trays, there were remnants of fireworks, toppled garbage cans, Tupperware containers of discarded food and piles of trash sitting unusually close to garbage cans that weren't full.

Mostly, picking up after Torontonians is the job of clean-up workers. "The staff realize that it's going to be busy, they don't dread it because they know what they are getting into when they sign up to clean down there," said Darrell Vossen, general supervisor for waterfront parks at Toronto Park, Forestry and Recreation.

"City staff can do what they can, but why are they picking up after the public's garbage?" said Sarah Doucette, city councillor for Ward 13, Parkdale-High Park. "I'm appalled, I thought we were civilized people, why would you just drop your garbage?"

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Ex-president's home searched in election probe

France. L'Oreal heiress suspected of providing illegal campaign cash to Sarkozy's party during 2007 campaign

French investigators searched former president Nicolas Sarkozy's home and office on Tuesday as part of a probe into suspected illegal financing of his 2007 presidential campaign by the L'Oreal cosmetics heiress, an official said.

Potential legal troubles have threatened Sarkozy since he lost the presidency to Socialist Francois Hollande in May elections. Sarkozy, who lost his immunity from prosecution June 15, denies wrongdoing.

Investigators from the Paris financial crimes unit conducted Tuesday's search of Sarkozy's home and offices, the official said.

Former French president Nicolas Sarkozy THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The probe centres on the finances of France's richest woman, L'Oreal cosmetics heiress Liliane Bettencourt.

A long-running family feud over her fortune ballooned in 2010 into a multi-layered investigation and political affair. Allegations emerged that Bettencourt provided illegal campaign cash to Sarkozy's party during the 2007 campaign. An accountant for Bettencourt said in 2010 that she gave 50,000 euros in cash in 2007 to Sarkozy's party treasurer — well beyond the 4,600 euros legal limit. Sarkozy vigorously denies the claims.

The allegations struck a chord with Sarkozy's critics, who were frustrated with his handling of the recession-hit economy and saw him as too cosy with the rich.

Bev Oda quits, shuffle on way?

International Co-operation Minister Bev Oda resigned Tuesday, giving Prime Minister Stephen Harper the space he needs for a cabinet shuffle this summer.

Oda's spending habits sparked a furor earlier this year when it was revealed she had rejected one five-star hotel in London, England, for another, more luxurious one at more than double the cost.

She had also hired a luxury car and driver for an average of $1,000 per day.

Her departure will force a byelection in the suburban Toronto riding of Durham within six months.

In the heat of the moment, blame global warming

But is it the culprit?

Scientists cagey: Too early to say it's behind some wacky weather

Melissa Mgana kisses her five-year-old daughter Sofia amid the ruins of their home in Colorado Springs, Colo. It was destroyed in a wildfire at the weekend. HELEN H. RICHARDSON/DENVER POST/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hot enough for ya? Is this what global warming has in store for us?

Just look at North America's weather picture in recent weeks: Horrendous wildfires, oppressive heat waves, devastating droughts and flooding from giant deluges.

Weather expert Kevin Trenberth calls it "I told you so" time.

The head of climate analysis at the National Center for Atmospheric Research in fire-charred Colorado says he warned of these record-breaking conditions, but many people wouldn't listen.

Jonathan Overpeck, professor of geosciences and atmospheric sciences at the University of Arizona, goes further.

"This is what global warming looks like at the regional or personal level," he says.

He adds: "This is certainly what I and many other climate scientists have been warning about."

But climate scientists also warn it's far too early to say global warming is the cause of the wacky weather. It takes intensive study, complicated mathematics, computer models and lots of time, they say.

Weather is always variable, they stress. Freaky things happen.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Turn on the air conditioning … please

Is the world warming up? Listen to the scientists …

- Since Jan. 1, the U.S. has set more than 40,000 hot-temperature records, but fewer than 6,000 cold ones, says the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.
- Through most of last century, the U.S. used to set hot and cold records evenly, but since 2000 America has set two hot records for every cold one, says climate expert Jerry Meehl of the National Center for Atmospheric Research.

Big feet, fat wallet saved Toronto man: Parents

Kenya. Kidnapped aid workers rescued by pro-government Somali militia on Monday

Big feet and a fortuitously placed wallet helped save the day for a Canadian aid worker snatched at gunpoint at a Kenyan refugee camp and marched with three other captors across the border into Somalia, his parents said Tuesday.

Clearly relieved after days of frantic worry, Carol-Ann and Peter Dennis were able to share some of the humour that helped sustain their son Steve Dennis during his ordeal.

"He's tall, so he's got big feet," Carol-Ann said.

"The trackers could track them because they could see the big foot and some little feet in the pattern of walking."

Dennis, 37, of Toronto, and fellow Canadian, Qurat-Ul-Ain Sadazai, 38, of Gatineau, Que., were among four aid workers snatched at gunpoint from the Dadaab refugee camp near the Somalia border on Friday.

Their Kenyan driver was killed when four gunmen attacked their two-vehicle convoy. Dennis was grazed by a bullet during the chaos.

Quoted

"He looks like he just stepped off a cruise."

Peter Dennis, upon seeing his rescued son Steve alive and well on TV.

"In Steve's case, it happened to hit him right in his wallet that he carries in his front (leg) pocket — it bruised him a little bit," his father said.

"He said he was saved by his credit cards."

The group later abandoned the vehicle they had taken and walked across the border.

Also kidnapped and rescued were Astrid Sehl, 33, of Norway, and Glenn Costes, 40, a Filipino.

RIM boss goes on the defensive

'Nothing wrong.'
Heins attempts to cast tech company's current challenges in a positive light

Research In Motion chief executive Thorsten Heins was on the defensive Tuesday, insisting "there's nothing wrong with the company as it exists right now," and that he's confident the BlackBerry maker will get past its current challenges.

Heins led the march of several executives who fanned out to media outlets in an effort to cast a positive glow on the company, which has been facing an increasing amount of negativity over its seemingly endless problems.

Last week, RIM shocked the market with another delay to its crucial BlackBerry 10 operating system which has been considered by many as a last-ditch effort to save the company. But that was only part of the bad news.

RIM CEO Thorsten Heins
THE CANADIAN PRESS

RIM also said it would layoff about 5,000 employees as it slashes costs across the organization to contend with faltering sales of its BlackBerry smartphones and a quickly eroding stock price.

RIM's stock closed 10 cents lower at $7.44 on Tuesday at the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Heins acknowledged the company faces a challenge to regain market share in the United States, but insisted RIM isn't in a "death spiral."

Heins said the major changes RIM has made to its management and business objectives since he became CEO in January are part of a massive transition to a whole new technology platform.

He said sales in other parts of the world remain strong and argued the transition to the BlackBerry 10 will be a completely different way for RIM to address mobile computing.

Lending. BMO predicts BoC will keep key interest rate low well into 2013

The Bank of Montreal predicted Tuesday that the Bank of Canada will keep its key interest rate low for longer than it expected.

Economists at the bank are now predicting that the central bank will not raise its key rate until July 2013, six months later than their earlier prediction of January 2013.

The rate affects the prime lending rates at banks and in turn influences all kinds of interest rates including those charged to variable rate mortgages and lines of credit.

But BMO mortgage expert Laura Parsons urged prospective home buyers to choose fixed-rate mortgages, which are also near record lows.

"While interest rates have been at historic lows, the inevitable climb will happen," said Parsons. "Choosing a fixed mortgage can provide protection against rising rates."

Ottawa moved last month to tighten mortgage rules for the fourth time in as many years in an effort to cool the housing market.

Revamp. Chuck E. Cheese gets makeover

Chuck E. Cheese has been given the pink slip.

The company that operates the chain of children's pizza restaurants is retiring the giant rodent's outdated image — and the man who voiced its character for nearly two decades.

CEC Entertainment Inc. says it plans to launch a U.S. ad campaign Thursday with a revamped image of Chuck E. Cheese as a hip, electric-guitar-playing rock star.

It's just the latest makeover for the 35-year-old mascot, which started life as a New Jersey rat who sometimes carried a cigar.

CEC Entertainment, based in Irving, Texas, is struggling to revive sales at its more than 500 pizza restaurants, which offer games, prizes and a musical variety show.

In May, CEC said revenue at its locations open at least a year fell 4.2 per cent in the first quarter and lowered its outlook for the year.

The new Chuck E. Cheese that launches this week will be voiced by Jaret Reddick, the lead singer for the pop-punk band Bowling for Soup.

The Chuck E. Cheese Facebook page now shows a silhouette of a cartoon mouse playing a guitar. The details of Chuck E.'s new image will be unveiled this week.

Beats Electronics buys MOG service

Upscale headphone maker Beats Electronics is buying music subscription service MOG in an attempt to improve what goes into playback devices as much as what comes out of them.

Beats, founded by rapper Dr. Dre and recording executive Jimmy Iovine, has devoted its brand to high-quality sound. But headphones and speakers have limited ability to improve the sound of compressed MP3s.

Beats hopes to use MOG to provide an end-to-end music experience that will help it compete against bigger subscription music rivals like Rhapsody and Spotify.

MOG's paying subscribers are estimated to be in the tens of thousands, compared to more than a million for Rhapsody in the U.S. and 3 million for Spotify worldwide.

REGISTRATION: $68. RUNNING 'TIL YOUR LEGS ARE JELLY: PRICELESS

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca/justsaying

I'm always looking for a new experience, so I've decided to sign up for a triathlon: swim, cycle, run; one immediately after another.

A lot of people are fierce and brave, and they like to tackle the Ironman triathlon, which consists of a 3.96-kilometre swim, a 180.25-km bike ride and a 42.2-km marathon, without any rest or dying in between.

I am not an iron man. More like a straw man, so I thought I'd start with a "sprint triathlon," which sounds very zippy, doesn't it? A sprint is to the Ironman what a Yaris is to an F-350 pickup: 700-metre swim, 20-km bike ride, 5-km run. There's less chance of sinking like a stone at about 2.57 km into the swim or falling off your bike into a ditch at 127 km, or wandering into traffic, dehydrated and disoriented, around 37 km in the marathon.

Still, this "sprint," which occurs on July 22 (why are my palms sweating already?) has its challenges, not the least being I've never done all three of these things in a row on the same day, and rarely in the same month.

The main challenge, as far as I can tell, is getting through the transition, which means getting from the pool and onto the bike, then off the bike and into running shoes, all while the clock is ticking. The "three Ts" are key to transition: towels, talcum powder and tugging, not necessarily in that order. It's also important not to get confused and cycle in your swim goggles or run in your bike helmet, all of which apparently happen. How would I know? I've never even watched a triathlon.

Which might lead you to ask why am I doing this? Well, it was either this or one of those river cruises along the Seine. Both of them involve going someplace exotic, like Paris or the pool at UBC. But the river cruise costs $7,000; registering for the triathlon? $68.

No contest.

Two weeks after the Point Grey Sprint Triathlon, on Aug. 7, is a similar event called the London Olympic Triathlon. While I'm just starting out, the great Canadian gold medallist (2000 Sydney Games) Simon Whitfield is in the twilight of his career and will be competing in one last Olympics before he retires, a geezer at 37.

Even though I can spot Simon a couple of years, once again, there are some similarities. Expectations are the key. On Aug. 7, the whole nation will be holding its breath hoping that Simon is able to win gold one last time. On July 22, my wife will be holding her breath hoping that I at least make it out of the pool.

OK. So what did you want for $68?

He's no Paul Sullivan, but Simon Whitfield, right, will still compete at the Olympics one last time. RICHARD LAUTENS/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

London launches largest string of summer events

Elizabeth Streb's dancers perform in front of Tower Bridge at the launch of the Mayor of London Presents cultural events program on Tuesday in London, England.

The Mayor of London, Boris Johnson, launched an unprecedented program of free cultural events. From daredevil dancers choreographed by Elizabeth Streb to unusual car-park art exhibitions including the work of artists such as Jeff Koons, David Hockney and Andy Warhol for BMW ART DRIVE presented by the ICA.

This will be the biggest ever outdoor cultural festival the capital has seen, brought to you by the Mayor of London and London 2012 Festival.

To help visitors navigate through all of the excitement, the mayor also launched a free mobile phone app Tuesday, which provides users with information on the festival as well as the city's events, attractions and recommendations on the best restaurants. The app uses Google map technology for easy touring.

What to do, what to do?

- Nothing is Set in Stone by award-winning composer and artist Mira Calix, incorporates an interactive sound system that allows visitors to experience the work through both touch and sound in the peaceful Fairlop Waters.
- Fish Out of Water: The English National Ballet and seven sisters group use dance, costume and camcorders to create an innovative performance at two iconic London venues.

From the mayor's office

"There has never been a better time to explore London, not just the well-known attractions, but the wonderful local gems waiting to be discovered."

Mayor Boris Johnson said in a release.

Why make a new film when you can recycle an old one?

Play it again, Sam. Hollywood has long been a fan of movie reboots. Spider-Man is the latest flick to get a an actor makeover

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

The adage, "The only constant is change," is only partially true in Hollywood. The list of recent movie reboots is as long as Lindsay Lohan's arrest record, and there's more on the way — we'll soon see new versions of Death Wish, Fletch and Highlander — but while the titles stay the same, the faces change.

This weekend, Peter Parker swings back into theatres, but instead of Tobey Maguire behind the familiar red-and-black-webbed mask it's Social Network star Andrew Garfield.

Not everyone is happy about the change. 1234zoomer commented on the new movie: "IS NOT GOING TO BE THE SAMEÒÒ WITHOUT TOBBY!!!," (her uppercase and spelling, not mine), but Maguire has been gracious, saying, "I am excited to see the next chapter unfold in this incredible story."

Whether the new Spidey acknowledges Maguire is yet to be seen, but at least one replacement had the manners to recognize their precursor on screen.

George Lazenby paid a tongue-in-cheek tribute to Sean Connery in On Her Majesty's Secret Service. After a wild battle to rescue Contessa Teresa (played by Diana Rigg) the new James Bond didn't get the girl. "This never happened to the other fellow," he says, looking dejectedly into the camera.

Former Bond Connery went on to co-star in The Hunt for Red October with Alec Baldwin playing Jack Ryan, a character later played by Harrison Ford and Ben Affleck.

It's rumoured that Chris Pine (who took over the part of Captain Kirk in Star Trek from William Shatner) will soon reprise the role.

The Batman franchise has also had a revolving cast. Since 1943 seven actors have played the Caped Crusader, including Lewis G. Wilson, who at 23 remains the youngest actor to play the character, and George Clooney who admits he was "really bad" in Batman & Robin.

It's not only the Caped Crusader who changes from time to time. Harvey Dent, the handsome district attorney who turns into villain Two Face has been played by Billy Dee Williams, Tommy Lee Jones and Aaron Eckhart and The Dark Knight's Maggie Gyllenhaal took over the role of Rachel Dawes from Batman Begins star Katie Holmes.

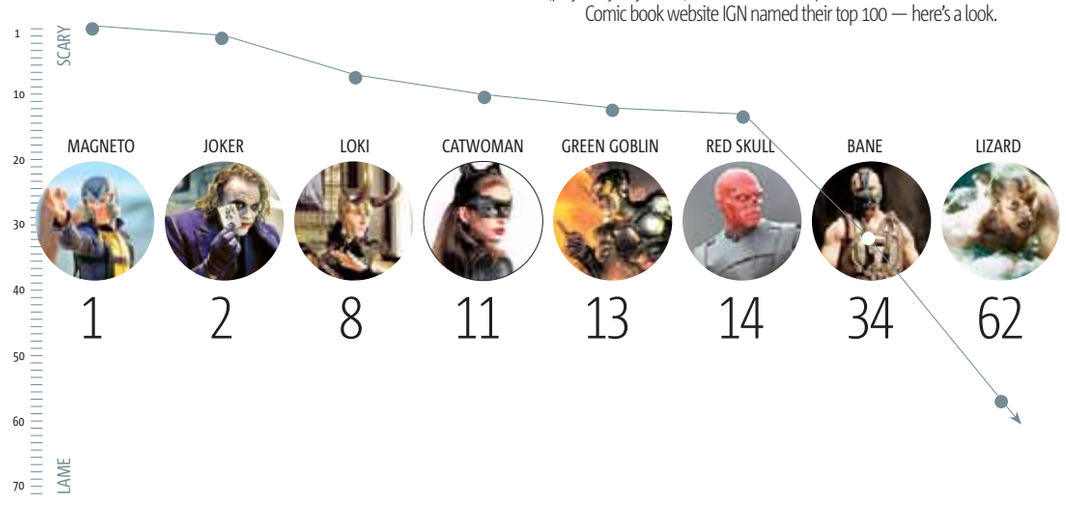
Finally, Jodie Foster's take on FBI agent Clarice Starling in Silence of the Lambs was ranked the sixth greatest protagonist in film history on AFI's 100 Years... 100 Heroes and Villains list, but when she declined to reprise the role in Hannibal, Julianne Moore stepped in.

A bit of a trend

"The adage, 'The only constant is change,' is only partially true in Hollywood. The list of recent movie reboots is as long as Lindsay Lohan's arrest record, and there's more on the way..."

HOW EVIL IS THE LIZARD?

The bad guy in The Amazing Spider-Man is a scientist turned, well, lizard (played by Rhys Ifans). How does he compare to other comic book villains? Comic book website IGN named their top 100 — here's a look.



GRACIOUS GUY
Tobey Maguire has wished the new Spider-Man luck and said, "I am excited to see the next chapter unfold in this incredible story."

Pitbull to Alaska: I know you want me

Miami rapper Pitbull might soon be chilling out in Alaska. In a marketing deal, Walmart will send Pitbull, a.k.a Armando Christian Perez, to the store that gets the most "likes" on its Facebook page. Right now, the leading candidate is Kodiak, Alaska. And there may be a reason. A writer for The Boston Phoenix newspaper thought it'd be funny to send Pitbull to the most remote Walmart possible, and is encouraging people to "like" the Walmart in Kodiak. The Kodiak Walmart had more than 35,000 "likes" Monday, more than five times the town's population.

How to get inTO this summer like never before

scene@metronews.ca

For those looking for out of the box arts and culture events, Sceneopolis, a local arts and culture subscription service, has launched inTO — a one of a kind arts and cultural digest. Curated by some of the top cultural engineers in Toronto's arts and culture scenes, the monthly inTO events will bring together celebrity artists and musicians with notable hosts giving attendees an opportunity to explore arts and culture in a way they've never been able to before. With only 100 tickets available per event the inTO series promises to be one of the hottest tickets around

The inaugural event, the Living Room Jam, will feel like watching your favourite indie band in a friend's loft. Hosts City News entertainment anchor Mary Kitchen and Jeffrey Remedios, co-founder of Arts & Crafts Productions (Feist's guru), will engage Eight and a Half in a discussion on the craft of music making interwoven with an intimate performance. Not entirely new to the scene, Eight and a Half is composed of Justin Peroff of Broken Social Scene and Dave Hamelin and Liam O'Neil from The Stills.

The Living Room Jam takes place on July 19 at Kitch, the latest retro restobar from the folks who brought Toronto the amazing Starving Artist care. Tickets, which include tasty Mexican comfort food and amazing cocktails, are only $49 for Sceneopolis subscribers and $69 for non subscribers.

The yearlong inTO series will feature monthly culture jams that let those in the know experience Toronto's culture in a way that money can't buy. Future events will be hosted by Cameron Bailey, artistic director, TIFF & Lisa Tant, the new Publisher of Hello! Magazine.

Sleigh Bells' Reign of Terror

New music. Album plays homage to classic rock bands like Def Leppard and pop acts like Cyndi Lauper and the Go Go's

PAT HEALY
Metro World News

Singer Alexis Krauss of Sleigh Bells has been a staple on the Coachella scene. CHARLEY GALLAY/GETTY IMAGES

Sleigh Bells seemed to emerge fully formed, with a brutally unique sound of overblown guitars and vocals that alternated between pop-singer sweetness and cheerleader vengeance.

The Brooklyn duo's 2009 debut, Treats, landed on nearly every single year-end best-of list, including this publication's.

For their follow-up, Reign of Terror, released this spring, guitarist Derek Miller and singer Alexis Krauss decided to do away with some of the tricks of Treats in favour of more conventional sounds. But they put these sounds into a context that is anything but conventional.

"In a lot of ways, Reign of Terror is an homage to classic rock and a lot of arena rock songs that are pretty formulaic and pretty universal in terms of structure and what they make you feel," says Krauss. "We were very shameless in referencing bands like Def Leppard or pop acts like Cyndi Lauper or the Go Go's."

Where Krauss was filling in pre-written vocal parts for the debut, the pair collaborated more for Reign of Terror, and the result is something more melodic. There are even a few ballads on the album. Krauss says she knows that the combination of '80s metal and their own pop and punk instincts have definitely turned off a few listeners. But she has no regrets.

"We always say that we don't really have any guilty pleasures," she says. "If we listen to something and we like it, we're not embarrassed about referencing it. We're both real lovers of pop music, so I think being able to write a really simple but catchy hook is one of the hardest things to do as a songwriter. And we kind of like thinking that way: 'How can we write a song as good as Pour Some Sugar on Me?'"

Quoted

Jennifer Hudson sings new Lullaby

RAISHAD HARDNETT
Metro World News

When many people think of Jennifer Hudson's singing style, they think of a thunderous, room-shaking tone. But now, with her new Pampers-inspired adaptation of the classic Lullaby and Goodnight, the multi-talented performer shows a gentler, sweeter side. We caught up with Hudson last week to discuss her new lullaby recording and how she balances being a mom and a superstar.

How did you incorporate your experiences as a mom into this lullaby?
(By) imagining putting my baby to sleep: What do you want to say to your child? What do you want them to hear before they fall asleep to soothe them, to calm them down? That's why I did it. Anytime he calls me, I say, 'That's my baby.' I always tell him, 'I love your hugs, I love your kisses.' So, I really took it from being a mom, and the real experience of that.

Jennifer Hudson is drawing on her experiences with kids in a new song. GETTY IMAGES

Is it difficult balancing motherhood with your work life?
It can be. That's why I love being from Chicago and living in Chicago. After we had our son, we decided we wanted to go back home, because to me that's what keeps you grounded. That's what keeps the foundation. And then you have family there, which is what keeps something normal, at least for him. I wanted him to have as much of a normal childhood as possible, and I felt like that was the best way to do that — by going back home. And although he is always in my world and watching mommy work, and seeing daddy wrestling — that's different, that will always make him grow up different — if he still has that base, that foundation that we had growing up, then that, to us, is what's important.

What advice do you have for new parents?
I remember when I first had my baby, I wanted all the guests to go back home, but I was so terrified of being home alone with him. It's natural to be terrified, but it falls into place. You just fall into it.

5 ways to keep the fun in your family vacation

Evil glares at the airport security line, jam-packed yesterdays that lead to too-tired-to-take-another-step todays, and kids offering TMI to the customs officials. It's no wonder parents get the shakes at the thought of a family vacation. Trust me, I know. My husband and I just spent more than 365 days with our two sons under the age of 10 on an around-the-world trip. Sure, there were moments when my sanity was questionable, but by the time we got home we were all a little wiser about how to make sure we made it through. My hard-learned lessons are your gain. These five tips will help replace your family's whines of "are we there yet?" with, "is it over already?"

TEXT AND PHOTOS BY HEATHER GREENWOOD DAVIS
life@metronews.ca

1 Don't let stressful moments steal your memories

Where we learned it: Beijing, China.
The mission was to meet our phenomenal guide at the Forbidden City. We should've been there by nine. At 10, we were still standing in pouring rain trying desperately to hail a cab. When we finally found one and agreed on the exorbitantly high overcharge, we had the ride of our life. Thrilled with his windfall the driver regaled us with broken English stories that we still giggle at today. We eventually saw and were amazed by the Forbidden City but nothing compared to the taxi ride over.

2 Pack less stuff

Where we learned it: The Mekong Delta in Vietnam.
Nothing will make you glad you didn't pack six pairs of shoes and three party dresses for a weekend away as a $6 deal on a lug-your-own-suitcase boat trip. There isn't a place in the world that doesn't have a laundry washing system or a place you can buy something in an emergency.

3 Ditch the routines you can; adjust the ones you can't

Where we learned it: Cairo, Egypt.
At home the kids go to bed at 8, breakfast is at 7 and new friends are rare. On this trip? Bedtime was when they fell asleep, breakfast could include ice cream and every day there was the possibility of adding a new friend. We told the kids it was an adventure and they thrived. So much so that when, in Cairo, we found ourselves playing table tennis on a street corner at midnight and no one blinked an eye. It turns out kids aren't as desperate for routine as we think and sometimes the thrill of a broken routine is needed.

4 The family that stays together loses their collective minds

Where we learned it: France.
We went to the Eiffel Tower twice but the kids were still itching to climb it; I was not. So we made a deal and while my husband took them to the top, I roamed the Champs Elysees. The result was a happier mom at the end of the day and a dad who knew I owed him one. (He cashed in with a boys night later on no questions asked.) While recharging your mojo remember to keep the self-imposed guilt to a minimum. There's nothing in the family vacation rulebook that says you aren't entitled to a vacation too.

5 Bring your phone

Where we learned it: Philadelphia, Penn.
We're so connected at home that a summer vacation can seem like the perfect time to disconnect. Do it if you must but remember that it's not the phone that's the problem, it's what you do with it and how often. Our trip was changed for the better because we had access to Twitter, Facebook and YouTube along the way.

Most Canucks plan to hit the road in summer

An online survey of more than 1,500 people across Canada finds 55 per cent plan to take a vacation this summer. The Leger Marketing poll, conducted last week and released Friday, found the average spending target for those who do plan to vacation in July or August was about $1,700. Respondents from Alberta had the highest vacation budget, averaging nearly $2,300 while Quebec residents had the lowest spending target, at just over $1,300. Canada was the preferred destination for 74 per cent of those planning a vacation.

Drive a tank around a mile-long dirt course and crush a car — all for around $550. JEFF BAENEN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Road rage? Why not rent a tank and smash a few cars?

Channeling Rambo. Just a short drive from Minneapolis exists a place where Cold War surplus vehicles can be hired for the day

For anyone who ever has been stuck in traffic, it's a tempting fantasy: If only you were driving a tank and could roll over everything in your path.

Some drivers are now flocking to an out-of-the-way spot in southern Minnesota to turn that vision into metal-crunching reality.

A business named Drive-a-Tank offers drivers the chance to pilot surplus military tanks and other armoured vehicles around an old limestone quarry and smash junk cars like an action movie hero.

The ride is loud, grinding, hot and dirty — ideal for satisfying one's inner Rambo.

"It was awesome. I mean, controlling that machine, it's incredible," said Jacob Ostling, 19, of New Canaan, Conn., among the customers who took a turn under the turret on a recent Saturday and flattened a car in an explosion of glass.

Owner Tony Borglum, a construction and heavy equipment contractor, opened the tank park three years ago after seeing similar attractions during a visit to England. He said he knew it would fit nicely into American culture — a more visceral version of what millions of guys are doing in video games anyway.

He began buying up old Cold War-era surplus and now has 11 armoured vehicles available for use on a 20-acre site near this town 80 kilometres southwest of Minneapolis.

Customers spend hours churning up and down a hilly, wooded course, getting a firsthand sense of what armoured warfare might be like.

Borglum said his tank park wasn't the first in the United States but he knows of no others still operating. Event co-ordinator Kessa Baedke said more than 600 packages have been sold this year.

Coney Island's Cyclone marks 85 years of thrills and chills

Roller coaster.
It takes a team of maintenance workers to keep this New York City icon in operation

The ride begins with two train cars, filled with as many as 24 passengers, cautiously trekking up a hill of wooden tracks. The rattle of the ascent slowly grows louder. As the cars reach the coaster's 85-foot peak, there's a short pause — followed by a swift 95 kph plunge to the bottom that has made stomachs churn and eyes water since Calvin Coolidge was in the White House.

Such a timeworn ride requires a great deal of attention to ensure the safety of its passengers, say workers responsible for the Cyclone, the 85-year-old New York City landmark and international amusement icon that was feted Saturday with a birthday party including 25-cent rides — the same price they were on its debut on June 26, 1927.

"It takes a lot of work to run a very old roller coaster," said Valerio Ferrari, president of Central Amusement International, which operates the coaster.

Each morning beginning at 7 a.m., maintenance workers hike the coaster's tracks along the walk boards in search of damaged wood and loose bolts. The cars, which are originals from 1927, are dismantled every winter before they undergo nondestructive testing and are reassembled.

The Cyclone may not be the oldest or tallest coaster in the nation. But it became a worldwide symbol of America's emerging leisure class in the early 20th century.

Towering above Coney Island's boisterous boardwalk at the corner of Surf Avenue and West 10th Street in Brooklyn, the Cyclone went up after brothers Jack and Irving Rosenthal invested $175,000 to build a dynamic new coaster that would satisfy the demand for more attractions in the area.

The result was a ride that included 2,640 feet of track, 12 drops and 27 elevation changes. For a minute and 50 seconds, passengers aboard the Cyclone were jerked from one edge of their seat to the other, as the coaster would slow around the bends before heaving its riders down steep dips.

This was all done by design, said Jennifer Tortorici, the Cyclone's operations manager.

"It's 2,640 feet of track, so if it wasn't slow in certain areas, the cars would wind up on the beach somewhere," she said.

Safety issues have at times dogged the Cyclone. A worker died on the ride in 1985, Tortorici said, and in 2008, the family of a California man who died after fracturing his neck on the ride sued the city for failing to keep the coaster safe. A Law Department spokeswoman said the city has been indemnified and the case is pending.

The city's Buildings Department conducts safety inspections up to three times a season, according to spokeswoman Ryan FitzGibbon.

Rome becomes romantic again with ode to the Eternal City

To Rome with Love. Woody Allen's latest film celebrates the beauty of Rome and leaves behind Italy's real-world problems

Woody Allen's newest movie To Rome with Love casts big names like Penelope Cruz, Alec Baldwin, Judy Davis and Allen himself. But there is one exceptional star: the Eternal City.

"This city is really special," says Hayley (Alison Pill) to her fiance Michelangelo (Flavio Parenti), as they stand on a terrace overlooking the Spanish Steps, one of Rome's famous attractions. "I could stand here all night, it's too beautiful."

Woody Allen's Rome is beautiful, clean and sunny, a city shining in pristine beauty with no hint of real-world problems like Italy's financial crisis. But while the movie offers an anachronistic and nostalgic postcard portrayal of Rome, Allen also goes beyond the city's best-known locations to capture the unconventional atmosphere of neighbourhoods less familiar to tourists like Sant'Angelo, Garbatella and Rione Monti.

The movie, released in Italy on April 20 and in the U.S. on June 22, opens with the imposing Victor Emmanuel II monument in Piazza Venezia. Because of its shape, the monument, inaugurated in 1911, has been given pejorative nicknames like "wedding cake" or "Mussolini's typewriter." The colossal construction has often been dismissed by locals as an unsuccessful attempt to restore classical Rome, but Allen uses it to set the stage, stationing a policeman there to introduce the city as a still and eternal witness to four stories of intrigue, love, sex and adultery.

The square is where Hayley, a young American tourist, and Michelangelo, an Italian lawyer, accidentally meet. She is looking for the Trevi fountain and he offers to bring her there. They spend the day together wandering through the city's beauty and predictably fall in love.

The central characters of the second story, Antonio (Alessandro Tiberi) and Milly (Alessandra Mastronardi), are a young married couple who just moved to Rome from a small town in the south of Italy. Milly gets lost in Rome's chaotic streets as she searches for a hairdresser to give her a less provincial look before meeting her husband's new co-workers. Her terrible sense of direction gives Allen the opportunity to show a wide area of Rome, starting with Milly's wanderings through the Piazza del Popolo, one of the city's most scenic entrances, featuring an obelisk brought by emperor Augustus after his conquest of Egypt, twin baroque churches and a marble fountain with Neptune and his Tritons.

From there, Milly walks through the Campo dei Fiori neighbourhood, asks for information at the Area Sacra (sacred area) of the Argentine, where Julius Caesar was said to have been murdered, and finally finds herself in Piazza Mattei, a small square in the heart of Sant'Angelo. According to a popular legend, the turtle fountain in the square was built in one night by Duke Mattei to conquer the heart of a young lady who lived in the palace in front of the square.

The movie shifts to the narrow and picturesque streets of Trastevere. A neighbourhood of artisans' homes and workshops since Roman times, Trastevere has in more recent decades become a fashionable district filled with restaurants, espresso bars and clubs.

Allen then switches from magnificent imperial buildings, the nostalgia-inspiring ruins seen from the Palatine, to the modernity of the Music Auditorium built by Renzo Piano in 1995, and the English gardens and neoclassical temple of Villa Borghese. He completes his vision of the city by showing the more local and unconventional locations of La Garbatella and Rione Monti.

Allen's not feeling the 'love'. Local press in Rome skewer his film

Despite Allen's efforts to write a love letter to Rome, the movie was poorly received in Italy.

The local press has dismissed it as embarrassing, superficial, and not funny, and the Italian public also has given it a thumbs down, although it did well on its opening weekend at the box office as curious filmgoers checked it out.

The Hollywood Reporter said it took in 2.8 million euros or $3.7 million opening weekend in Italy, making it the top-grossing film in the country with the highest opening-day total for any of Allen's films in Italy; it also pulled in huge audiences in the U.S. despite mixed reviews and a limited release its first weekend, debuting with $379,371 in just five American theatres.

But even with the superficiality of the stories and lukewarm reviews, Allen's glowing portrayal of Rome has not gone completely unappreciated.

"Despite the criticism, I still think it's very nice what Allen tried to do with this film," said Valeria Vecellio, interior designer for the cinema industry in Rome.

"Whether the result is a beautiful movie or, as in this case, a superficial and ironic experiment, it's nice that he decided to pay his loving homage to Rome, one of the most beautiful cities in the world."

With the 'Carte Isabelle,' summertime visitors can travel the train route along the French Riviera for roughly $15. It's a cheap way to tour the coastline, but how many stops can you reasonably fit into a day on the route between Frejus in the west and Ventimiglia, just across the border in Italy? Let's count...

EMMA E FORREST, METRO WORLD NEWS
life@metronews.ca

4 must-sees along the Cote D'Azur

1 Head to the market

The first train of the day sets off at 5:30 a.m. but we begin our day at a more civilized 9 a.m., with a fortifying croissant and a 10-minute trot from the station to the promenade in the town of Menton. Close to the border, the old part of this Italianate town is a warren of cafés and ice cream shops, and the covered market, where we have a coffee at the counter of the 'Café du Marche' before perusing the local produce: Menton's famously fragrant lemons, courgettes with saffron-coloured flowers still attached and piles of red, black and golden tomatoes. Across the road we admire the works in the seafront museum dedicated to artist Jean Cocteau.

2 Pick out your (fantasy) yacht

Two stops along we arrive in the gleaming subterranean station of Monaco Monte Carlo and weave our way down the harbour to ogle the world's most expensive yachts. From there it's back up the hill to the Casino Monte-Carlo where tourists take photos of each other in front of the Lamborghinis and Ferraris parked outside. It's a stroll round to the beach at Larvotto, where we tuck into lunch at pizza restaurant La Spiaggia.

3 Stroll the beach

After lunch we head back to the station and 10 minutes later we alight at Beaulieu-Sur-Mer, an elegant town with belle époque buildings and manicured gardens as well as Villa Kerylos, a replica of a second century BC Greek villa created by millionaire Theodore Reinach in the early 1900s, which is just two minutes' walk from the station. After admiring the columns in the villa's courtyard, its octagonal bath and second century BC cockerel mosaic, we stroll to the beach, lay our towels down and take a dip in the Mediterranean Sea. There's time for a glass of wine under the orange parasols at the beach café, La Calangue.

Enjoy the harbour

Villefranche-sur-Mer is home to one of the deepest natural harbours in the Med. It's a charming old town that steps up from a picturesque main square overlooking the port. We arrive just in time to visit Jean Cocteau's fish murals in the tiny Chapelle de St-Pierre chapel before the 7 p.m. closing time, then claim a great table in the town square outside the trendy Le Cosmo restaurant. As we watch the sun set over the boats, we sip a cocktail and reflect on our day. Not only did our rail pass save us money, but enabled us to see far more than we might have otherwise have done.

Even when Parrot Cay is at capacity, it still feels empty as you walk miles of sugary beach.

Staying there is not exactly cheap, but the rates are at their lowest right now through November (triple-digit temps are the norm during this part of the year, and hurricane season comes in early fall).

As for the prices, the lowest tier are the veranda rooms and suites. A garden-view room starts at $500 per night and can easily accommodate a couple and two small children.

The next tier, beach houses and villas, start at $2,000 per night.

2 Activities

Whether it's the pervasive calming aroma or focus on wellness, most of Parrot Cay's employees exude a chilled-out vibe.

You won't see any large signs with rules telling you what not to do, like at some other resorts. You don't even have to sign out the free aquatic gear you use — but if you need instruction on how to use a paddle board, windsurfer or catamaran, the staff is there to assist.

3 Wellness

Celebrity cachet is merely a by-product of Parrot Cay's main attraction: the resort's focus on wellness.

The owners have harnessed the island's natural therapeutic powers — and by placing spa buildings on high vantage points that overlook the ocean, they celebrate its serene landscape.

Whether you're practicing yoga or indulging in a massage — the resort has elaborate choices for each — your line of vision is nothing but verdant mangrove and turquoise ocean.

4 Cuisine

Parrot Cay's elaborate wellness program extends to the cuisine at Parrot Cay.

In addition to a regular menu, which features plenty of decadent choices that you'd hope for on vacation, the restaurants offer what they call a Como Shambala menu.

This alternate delivers healthy options that don't preclude deliciousness.

For breakfast, try the sweet corn hotcakes with smoked salmon, avocado, roast tomatoes and cottage cheese.

There's no pressure to participate in any of the wellness agenda; it's just a means by which to achieve relaxation, which is easy to do here with or without it.

Creamy Curry Sauce turns up the heat

This recipe bathes boneless, skinless chicken thighs in a delicious curry marinade. The thighs then get tossed on the grill.

Meanwhile, a bit of the marinade (which was reserved before the chicken was added) is blended with low-fat sour cream for a rich condiment to be dolloped on the chicken after it comes off the grill. The result is a moist and richly flavoured chicken curry that is as comfortable solo on a paper plate at a barbecue as it is on a plate of rice indoors.

1. In a blender, combine the chicken broth, onion, garlic, ginger, turmeric, curry leaves, cinnamon stick, cumin seeds, peppercorns, coriander, salt, lemon juice and honey. Puree until very smooth. Transfer a third of the mixture to a small saucepan and set aside.

2. Pour the remaining mixture in a large zip-close plastic bag. Add the chicken thighs, then seal the bag and gently massage to ensure all of the meat is coated by the marinade. Refrigerate for at least 30 minutes, or up to overnight.

Ingredients

- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 small onion, quartered
- 1/2 head garlic, cloves peeled
- 1-inch chunk fresh ginger
- 1-inch chunk fresh turmeric
- 2 sprigs fresh curry leaves
- 2-inch cinnamon stick
- 1/2 tsp cumin seeds
- 1/2 tsp black peppercorns
- 1/4 tsp ground coriander
- 1 tsp salt
- Juice of 1/2 lemon
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1 1/2 lbs boneless, skinless chicken thighs
- 1 cup low-fat sour cream

3. Meanwhile, set the saucepan of reserved marinade over medium heat. Bring to a simmer and cook until reduced and quite thick, about 10 minutes. Set aside to cool.

4. When ready to cook, heat the grill to medium-high. Coat the grates with oil using an oil-soaked paper towel grasped with tongs.

5. Remove the chicken from the marinade. Discard the marinade. Place the chicken on the grill and cook for 6 to 7 minutes per side, or until the meat reaches 165 F.

6. While the chicken cooks, in a small bowl combine the reserved marinade and the sour cream. To serve, drizzle the sour cream mixture over the chicken.

Casting your net and making it work: Turn all of your meetings into magic Social secrets. A step-by-step guide to turning a handshake into 'you're hired'

JELEEN YU
TalentEgg.ca

Feeling a little puzzled? Don't overcomplicate your conversations. Keep them light, yet focused. ISTOCK

For most people, networking is pretty much a necessary evil. For Piotr Makuch, it's a little closer to crazy.

"The idea that people should go and network is insane," says the fourth-year Ryerson University student.

It's a radical thought for someone in his position, but not for the reasons you might think. As an online marketer and vice-president of external communication for Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE), Piotr regularly interacts with people, both in person and online.

Unlike most, though, he considers every moment and meeting — chance or planned — an opportunity to make a meaningful connection. He suggests looking at networking not as a work-related requirement, but as a way of life.

"We're actually always networking without knowing it," the sociology major explains. "We only call it 'networking' when someone with a job shows up; the rest of the time, it's just a conversation. But that shouldn't be the case, because every moment is a networking opportunity."

Here, Piotr shares his advice for job seekers looking to navigate the often-murky waters of the networking world, including his three-step method to getting the most out of every interaction, whether personal or professional.

Step 1: Plan

Goals are important. Even if you aren't sure of what you want, it's important to have a sense of direction to keep you focused. Planning will make any conversation easier because you'll have a sense of where you want the conversation to eventually end up.

Never underestimate the fundamentals. Networking is about connection and you can't do that until you're able to answer the question of who you are and what you're about in a direct and concise manner. Master and own your elevator pitch. If you don't know what you want, no one else will either.

Step 2: Interact

Networking is like dating. You want to get to know the other person in a short amount of time, so make sure to pose plenty of the right questions. Your needs will define the questions that you ask, and the conversation will be shaped by what you choose to talk about. Make sure to take away at least one unique point from every person you meet so you can start the conversation again outside the immediate context.

Ready-to-go versions

"We only call it 'networking' when someone with a job shows up; the rest of the time, it's just a conversation. But that shouldn't be the case, because every moment is a networking opportunity."
Piotr Makuch

During the conversation you should be reflecting everything back at the person to get to know them better. That way, you're never talking about one thing for too long, and the conversation will just flow naturally. Maintain a light — but focused — conversation.

Step 3: Follow up

Think of the follow-up as a continuation of that first encounter — your approach will be defined by how the original conversation went. Use the key points you took earlier to remind your contact of who you are and what you both talked about, and keep the message consistent with your goals. As a rule of thumb, make sure to send your note within 24 hours. Keep your online life in line

More conversations are happening online, professionally through LinkedIn and more casually through Twitter and Facebook. Make sure your online presence is in order and ready for those opportunities when they arrive.

YORK U UNIVERSITÉ UNIVERSITY
redefine THE POSSIBLE.

Can I please order a job with that salad?

Lunch lesson. Any business meal can turn into an opportunity. Be prepared.

ISHANI NATH
TalentEgg.ca

It's the other type of brunch and it's not nearly as relaxing. Business lunches are a major part of corporate culture.

The biggest mistake that young hires make at business lunches is assuming that being out of the office means they are no longer in a professional setting, says Linda Allan, a professional etiquette expert and president of Linda Allan Inc. "It doesn't matter how formal or informal the setting, the same standard of etiquette applies."

What standard is that you ask? Well, let's start at the beginning.

Pre-lunch

Dress appropriately. If you're going straight from work, this shouldn't be a problem, but if you're meeting someone, make sure you leave the plaid shirt and short shorts behind. Business lunch means business wear.

Show up early

Punctuality and professionalism go hand in hand and the best way to avoid being late is to show up a bit early. Allan recommends arriving around 10 minutes before your meeting. If you get to the restaurant before your host, wait in the lobby area. Don't get seated until your lunch partner has arrived.

What's on the menu?

When it comes to ordering, play follow the leader. If your host orders a salad, don't order the filet mignon. Try to match the price point and number of courses as your dining buddy.

The same rules apply for drinks. If your host orders alcohol, Allan says students can order a "big kid" drink as well, but at a lunch, it's by no means necessary. If you decide to sip on the good stuff, limit yourself to one order and drink it slowly.

There are ways to stay connected without picking up your cell. ISTOCK

TalentEgg Tip

- For that added touch, Allan recommends sending a handwritten card after the meeting to thank your host for lunch. It doesn't have to be fancy, just a few sentences to show your appreciation and leave a more memorable impression on your host.

Talking shop

The host generally decides when it's time to get down to business, says Allan, "all you have to do as an invitee to the lunch is follow the lead of the host." If you have questions that you really want answered, wait until after you've ordered and given your menus to the waiter. That will allow enough time for small talk and ensure that you get your answers.

Formal goodbye

The host will signal the end of the lunch, so again, just follow the leader. When the time comes, make sure to get up, shake their hands and thank them for their time. Much like a good dessert, you want to make sure that you end the meal sweetly.

Channel a summer's day at your own desk

It's July and eerily quiet in the office. Your cubicle neighbour took off to the cottage and is sure to return relaxed and a full shade darker. You stare wistfully out the window and wish you could be out enjoying the sun. To keep motivated when you're cooped up indoors, consider these helpful tips.

NEWS CANADA

1 Brighten someone's day

Bake cookies for your fellow sunshine-deprived colleagues. It will be the perfect pick-me-up for long afternoons and may even start a trend of sharing homemade goodies around the office for the summer. You can also make someone smile overseas by sponsoring a child with an organization like Christian Children's Fund of Canada (ccfcanada.ca), you can help change the life of a child living in extreme poverty.

2 Ask for flexible hours

See if your employer will allow you to come in to work earlier so you can leave earlier and enjoy the summer weather. Or ask to work longer hours during the week so you can have Friday afternoons off.

3 Get out there

Pick a parking spot further away from the front doors so you'll spend more time walking outside. At lunch, go out with colleagues or picnic on the grass. Try to schedule meetings outside or at a nearby park if possible.

4 Be thankful

Though it's no fun to be staring at a computer when it seems that everyone is out soaking up the sun, remember that the job market is tough and being employed is worth celebrating. Besides, you can save up your vacation days and enjoy time off during non-peak seasons — meaning less crowds and less cost.

Great expectations for Britain's Murray

Wimbledon. This may finally be Andy Murray's year after easy win against Cilic, exit of Nadal

The lofty expectations placed on Great British Hope Andy Murray every year at Wimbledon ramped up several notches following Rafael Nadal's surprising exit.

So far, Murray is coping pretty well.

Even when dealing with a rare venture away from Centre Court, the fourth-seeded Murray easily dispatched Marin Cilic between rain showers in the round of 16 on Tuesday, showing no sign of the increased pressure he has been under since Nadal opened up the bottom half of the draw by losing to the unheralded Lukas Rosol in the second round on Thursday.

Murray was given a standing ovation by a jubilant Court One crowd after his 7-5, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Cilic, who won the grass-court Queen's Club title in the run-up to Wimbledon.

Murray is now just two wins away from becoming the first British man to reach the final at the All England Club since Bunny Austin in 1938. Next up is a quarter-final match against seventh-seeded David Ferrer, who reached Wimbledon's last eight for the first time with a victory over 2009 U.S. Open champion Juan Martin del Potro.

Given the domestic hype surrounding Murray, it promises to be the standout match of the four all-European quarter-finals Wednesday.

Also on Tuesday, Florian Mayer of Germany beat Richard Gasquet to set up a match against top-seeded Novak Djokovic.

Germany will have two players in the quarter-finals after Philipp Kohlschreiber beat Brian Baker, ending the American's remarkable run at his first Wimbledon. Kohlschreiber will play fifth-seeded Jo-Wilfried Tsonga of France, while the other quarter-final will be No. 3-ranked Roger Federer against Mikhail Youzhny — who both had time to complete their wins Monday before rain stopped play in the other five fourth-round matches.

All-star Williams staying with Nets

Deron Williams is moving to Brooklyn with the Nets, instead of back home to Dallas.

The all-star point guard said on his Twitter page Tuesday night that he "made a very tough decision today" and posted a picture of the Nets' new team logo that accompanies their move from New Jersey to Brooklyn.

A person with knowledge of the decision said Williams told the team he was accepting their five-year contract worth $98 million. The person confirmed the agreement on condition of anonymity because contracts can't be signed until July 11.

Williams, the top free agent available, chose to stay with the Nets over signing with the Mavericks, who hoped they could convince him to come back to the area where he grew up.

Pacquiao loss deemed legal

Nevada's state attorney general found nothing illegal or criminal in Manny Pacquiao's controversial split-decision loss to Timothy Bradley in a welterweight title fight last month in Las Vegas, according to a letter made public Tuesday.

Interviews with the referee of the June 9 fight, two Nevada Gaming Control Board officials and state Athletic Commission Director Keith Kizer turned up no evidence of wrongdoing, state Attorney General Catherine Cortez Masto said in the letter to Top Rank chief executive Bob Arum.

Leafs prospect McKegg hopes third time's a charm at camp

NHL. Leafs third-round pick in 2010 eager to make big impression

No offence, Dale Hunter, but Greg McKegg would rather not go back to the London Knights this year.

McKegg, a gifted scorer emerging as a two-way player, would much rather make the Maple Leafs or even the Marlies.

The next step in that process is for McKegg to make a big impression at the Leafs prospects camp this week at the MasterCard Centre.

The Leafs' third-round pick, 62nd overall, in 2010, McKegg is in his third prospects camp. He's eligible to go back to the OHL as an overage player, but really, if his future lies with the pros, this is his time to shine.

"I have a lot of confidence from last year," said McKegg. "Hopefully I can bring a little offence to camp, show the brass I can play a two-way game."

McKegg might be that diamond in the rough, a mid-round pick who makes good. He scored 49 goals two seasons ago in Erie. Last season, he was traded at the midway point and emerged as the top centre on a London Knights team that went to the Memorial Cup.

"I think (playing in) London helped a lot with trying to make the step to the next level," said McKegg.

On Tuesday, McKegg led coach Greg Cronin's Team White to a 4-1 win over Team Blue in the first scrimmage of the camp. McKegg scored twice. He did what a 20-year-old is supposed to do against less-experienced players: dominate.

"You can see he's got the hockey savviness, the hockey IQ. He's intelligent," said Jim Hughes, the Leafs' director of player development who is running the camp. "He's gifted offensively and we know that about him. He's just got to continue to improve his skating: more power, more explosion, more quickness."

Raptors make move to sign Knicks' Fields

The Toronto Raptors have reached a verbal agreement on an offer sheet with restricted free agent guard Landry Fields.

Fields averaged 8.8 points and 4.2 rebounds a game last year with the New York Knicks. The Raptors can't make the offer sheet official until July 11, at which point the Knicks would have three days to match.

The Raptors declined to comment on the report when reached by The Canadian Press, but Octagon agency, which represents Fields, confirmed to The Associated Press that the deal is three years and about $20 million US.

Fields was also reported in several media outlets to be part of a sign-and-trade deal between the Knicks and the Phoenix Suns for point guard Steve Nash, who is said to be highly coveted by the Raptors.

Altima finally gets a makeover

ALL PHOTOS WHEELBASE

Active Understeer

On the road, the Altima uses Active Understeer Control. During turning, light braking is applied to the inside wheel to counteract the natural tendency for the car to continue in straight line.

Also assisting is Nissan's Easy Fill Tire Alert that was initially installed in the Quest minivan.

Interior

The interior offers about the same passenger and trunk volume as before, but a concerted effort was undertaken to replace or recover hard-plastic surfaces with soft-touch materials. Another area of focus was noise reduction, achieved by adding more sound-absorbing materials around the car.

2013 Nissan Altima

- Type. Four-door, front-wheel-drive mid-size sedan.
- Engine (hp): 2.5-litre DOHC I4 (182); 3.5-litre DOHC V6 (270).
- Mileage: L/100 km (city/hwy) 7.4/5.0 (2.5).
- Base Price (incl. destination): $25,300.

Engine

The base 2.5-litre four-cylinder's output has notched up to 182 horsepower from the previous 175 due to a new valve train. An all-new continuously variable transmission offers fewer moving parts (reducing friction) and electronic-control improvements so that it more closely mimics a traditional multi-speed automatic.

Nissan has reduced the Altima's overall weight by about 33 kilograms.

Review. The Altima reset the bar for the family car back in 2002. Look what a decade has done

Wheelbase Media

First impressions are often lasting ones, and for new-car buyers they can also make the difference between closing the deal right then and there or searching elsewhere.

Where the 2013 Nissan Altima is concerned, most shoppers' reactions will be, "Whoa!"

The outgoing Altima that has been around since the 2007 model year was certainly no mutt, but the new car really shows that its best-before date has come and gone. The mid-size sedan presents a graceful face, with a grille and headlight pods that almost appear to melt into the stylish fenders. The windshield pillars have a bit more rake to them to help reduce aerodynamic drag.

At the opposite end, the knife-edge-style tail lights neatly encircle the fenders and the trunk lid's spoiler is integrated as part of the sheet metal. Viewed in profile, the Altima doesn't appear significantly changed, but the fancier chrome door handles and similarly coated trim pieces throughout attest to the car's more glamorous presence.

The base 2.5 model's pricing begins at $25,300 (including delivery to the dealer) and includes all the usual bells and whistles. From that point, S, SV and SL models pile on the content, but can add more than $9,000 to the base price with luxuries such as heated front seats leather interior, heated steering wheel and a power moonroof.

The Altima's impressively restyled sheet metal and interior appointments, matched with seriously improved fuel economy, serve notice that this Nissan has what it takes get your attention.

"Whoa," indeed.

If you recall, Nissan/Infiniti began offering "self-healing" exterior paint. More unusual technology follows as the company has "zero gravity" front seats for the Altima that reduce pressure on the spine and improve blood flow. Of course, NASA was the influence.

Remember when taillights were on the back of a car and the headlights were on the front? With the right curves and thoughtful integration of chrome, the Altima can finally be called a pretty car.

Two-bucket solution

Grit Guard is introducing its colour-coded Dual-Bucket Washing System to its cleaning products lineup. The black bucket contains only clean wash solution, so after dunking your wash mitt and washing for a bit, you then rinse the mitt in the red bucket. Dunk the mitt back into the black bucket for more washing solution, etc. Both buckets feature Grit Guard's removable inserts that keep the washed-off crud at the bottom of the bucket, reducing the possibility of paint scratches or swirl marks. The buckets sit in their own dollies with casters and have individual lids. A seat cushion included with the kit converts one bucket into a handy stool. The Dual-Bucket System sells for $130 US and is offered directly from gritguard.com.

Car sharing movement takes big city steps

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

If your nursery school report card noted you didn't like to share and/or only did so under the threat of excommunication from the mid-morning snack program, then car2go might not be for you.

But if you normally play well with others, are 18 or older and with a valid driver's licence, then you might consider this new way of getting access to a cute, little smart fortwo car as a partial solution to your transportation requirements.

Car sharing programs are obviously not new, but car2go ramps it up a notch in several ways.

For starters, car2go is a wholly owned subsidiary of German automaker, Daimler. It's already firmly established in 11 cities across Europe and North America. You Vancouverites already know that your city is among that 11, and the first Canadian one to join the party.

Toronto joined the party just this past week, on June 30. Calgary and Miami get their car2go programs later this July. Expect announcements on other large Canadian cities later this year.

Green P parking lots, like this one near Queen Street West, are where members can start and end their car2go journeys. CONTRIBUTED

But at its launch here in Toronto, Katie Stafford, car2go's North American communications manager, outlined the primary differentiator: "Unlike other car share programs, our cars are free floating."

Yes, they never touch the ground, like flying saucers and really good hovercrafts. Actually, free floating refers to the fact that they never have to be returned to where you started. You can get into one wherever you find one, and end your trip at any one of the 200-plus Green P parking lots in car2go's "Toronto Home Area," bordered by Jane Street in the west, Eglinton Street in the north, Victoria Park Avenue in the east, and the water of Lake Ontario in the south.

Stafford notes that car2go's free floating nature lends itself to more short and/or impromptu trips than traditional car share models, which often require minimal hourly rental periods and reservations. But the vehicles can be reserved, via a smartphone app or on car2go.com.

5 steps for using car2go

- Become a member and get a card.
- Locate a vehicle spontaneously or via a phone app, or book through car2go.com.
- Hold card by reader to unlock doors. Enter pin to release key stowed next to touch screen.
- Use the key as normal to start car — and go wherever you want in the province.
- End journey at any designated parking area (200-plus). By minute charges automatically debited from your credit card.

Members only pay for the time they use the car, by the minute (35 cents), with discounts for hourly or daily use. If you don't drive more than 200 km at a time, you just pay the minute/hour/day rate. No fuel. No parking. No insurance. No maintenance. No nothing. You can go only a couple of blocks or to Thunder Bay and back — your call. But on longer hauls you're going to get better rates from the traditional rental car outfits.

The drop off lots are not coincidentally located in the area of Toronto best served by the TTC. At the Toronto car2go launch I also met Nick Cole, the top exec for car2go's North American initiative, and he told me that the car2go model is designed to "compliment" public transit.

"This could even be the bridge to someone utilizing public transit," added Cole, referring to families and commuters who need just a bit more of the flexibility car2go provides to meet all of their transportation needs across the city, but don't want to make that big jump to car ownership.

Car sharing is obviously a movement on the rise, and frankly I'm a little surprised. I wouldn't have thought there would have been the necessary growth in maturity among the driving populace since nursery school and kindergarten — that most of us can now do sharing without grimacing.

On a personal note, sharing is perfectly OK with me, it's Brian I hate, Brian who always hogged the sandbox bulldozer set.

Why pay more for car insurance, when you could pay less?

Drivers should shop around to find a better rate.

Insurance is a very competitive industry, and the more you shop around, the more likely you are to find a better deal. Shopping around is far and away the best chance to save money on car insurance, as the rates charged by different insurance companies to insure the same driver, with the same car, for the exact same coverage, can vary by hundreds and even thousands of dollars. And with so many insurance companies providing car insurance in Ontario, odds are you are not currently insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile.

If your policy is not up for renewal yet, it is still worth investigating and shopping around, as you may find a better rate. Although some insurance companies charge a cancellation penalty, if your new rate is low enough, the savings you'll gain could be worth making the switch.

Shopping around for car insurance is one of the best ways to ensure that you're paying the best rate based on your circumstances. It gives you the ability to compare the rate offered by your current insurance provider with other providers without any obligations. It can be time consuming when you have to make dozens of phone calls to individual insurance companies. Insurance quoting sites like InsuranceHotline.com can help by comparing your insurance rate against over 30 car insurance companies to find you a lower rate available for your driving profile.

Imagine a place where insurance companies compete for you.

Experience a fast, free, and easy service that's loyal to your wallet, not your insurance provider.

Volvo's new airbag designed for pedestrians

Driving Force. All cars focus on protecting the driver and passengers, but this feature takes safety to another level

drive@metronews.ca

Don't worry, this airbag won't deploy if a shopping cart hits your bumper. VOLVO CARS

Airbag facts

- The pedestrian airbag is currently available on the all-new V40, a model that won't be sold in Canada, but will be rolled out to other Volvo vehicles in future.
- Volvo says that 75 per cent of all collisions involving pedestrians are at speeds below 40 km/h.
- Some 12 per cent of U.S. traffic fatalities are pedestrians; in Europe it's 14 per cent; and in China, it's 25 per cent.

In any collision between a vehicle and a pedestrian, the pedestrian always loses. While that will never change, Volvo is counting on its new pedestrian airbag to help reduce the severity of injuries when cars and people collide.

While other airbags are inside the vehicle, this new airbag is under the hood. When sensors in the front bumper detect that someone has been struck, the airbag deploys, lifting the rear of the hood slightly, and covering the area around the windshield wipers and pillars.

Raising the hood lifts it away from the engine, important because many pedestrians are injured when the hood buckles and they're slammed against the hard engine components below. The wiper and pillar areas are also hard and more likely to cause serious injury.

"When the car is travelling between 20 and 50 km/h and it senses that it's impacting a pedestrian's leg, a number of things are actuated," says Thomas Broberg, senior technical advisor for safety at Volvo Cars.

"One of the joints at the rear end of the hood is released pyrotechnically, and then the airbag lifts the hood at the same time it's deploying over the wiper area. Then spring-loaded joints kick in to keep the hood in position. There are a lot of things that happen at the same time, and it's in milliseconds."

It was a challenge to develop the airbag, since temperatures in the engine compartment fluctuate considerably, and it must be protected from moisture.

"The sensors along the bumper recognize the impact of a human-like mass and form, compared to other objects that you might hit, like a grocery store cart," Broberg says.

"It doesn't go off if the car isn't moving, so if people are coming home from the pub and they start kicking cars, they can kick as long as they want, and it won't go off. And it won't go off if you're working under the hood, unless you're trying to repair your car when it's travelling at 50 km/h."

Some Volvo vehicles automatically brake when they sense a pedestrian walking out in front.

Broberg says that at lower speeds, the collision might be avoided entirely.

If the car is travelling above the airbag's 50 km/h threshold, the auto-braking might not be able to stop the car in time, but could potentially bring the speed down to the point that the airbag would deploy and help to reduce human injury.

Horoscope

Aries | March 21 - April 20. You know what needs to be done and you know you have what it takes to make a good job of it — so what are you waiting for? Act now!

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. You may be having second thoughts about a project you are involved with, but planets warn it'd be wrong to make changes at this stage.

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. What people say and what they mean will be two different things today. Assume that nothing you hear can be taken for granted.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. You may find yourself at a loss to explain why certain things are happening but your senses tell you they are, so all you can really do is decide how to react. Doing something is better than doing nothing.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. Mercury in your sign will help you outsmart those who think you can be easily manipulated. They're wrong.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. Chances are you will mislead yourself about something today — the kind of thing that 99 times out of 100 would not fool you at all.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. You know your way of looking at the world is best but you won't be able to convince loves ones and work colleagues of that today. They have as much right to be wrong as you.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. You will hear something you do not agree with today but don't make an issue of it. Others can rant and rave, and make fools of themselves if they so wish, but you know it is better to be self-controlled.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Today's cosmic activity will encourage you to focus on down-to-earth matters such as how to pay the bills and make ends meet.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. Do whatever it takes to avoid feelings of doom today. If you get stuck in a bad mood now, you may not be able to snap out of it until the weekend at the earliest.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Don't try to second guess partners and loved ones today because there is a danger you will get it wrong.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. You may think you know what's going on at work, but do you? Mercury's link to Pluto warns you may have logic twisted, so try to stand back from the situation and see the wider picture. SALLY BROMPTON
